Help build leaders: Volunteer at Get AMPT! Week

You are invited to share your time and experience with high school students in an intensive week-long program developing teamwork, business and leadership skills.

What is “Get AMPT! Week”?

At Get AMPT! Week, students create a product of the future while learning how to profit from their innovation and creativity. This week is packed with hands-on projects, industry tours and career exploration opportunities for a future in Aerospace, Marine, or Process Technology (AMPT).

Students are part of a small team (“company”) of students from around the state. As a mentor “Company Advisor,” you will help your “company” build a prototype food harvester in response to a Request for Proposal. The hands-on simulation is filled with real-life business scenarios involving production, marketing and finance.

Tours, demonstrations, and industry panels will showcase the wide spectrum of opportunities in manufacturing in Washington State. Throughout the week you’ll also have the opportunity to network and enhance or develop your skills in leadership, small group management, finance and critical thinking.

Judges are also needed!

At the end-of-the-week, the companies compete in a Trade Show and make a Stockholder’s presentation. Volunteers from the manufacturing community judge the presentations and “invest” venture capital in the companies of their choice. Judging requires a half-day time commitment on Friday morning.

Business Week

Since 1976, teams of students have competed in an interactive business simulation that places them in leadership roles of their own company. Mixing the art of persuasion with sound business tactics, your company will pitch its latest product to potential investors. Business is in everything!

Healthcare Week

Your team will run a clinic and navigate through a medical response plan, a real-world healthcare crisis, clinical workshops, and disease research while learning about leadership, teamwork and the business of healthcare. The healthcare industry is sure to get your heart pounding!

Energy Week

Business Week meets sustainability as students explore the world of energy. Energy experts will show you first-hand how energy, economics, and environment combine to create career opportunities. Your team will develop our future communities by exploring how energy is created, consumed, and conserved – while making a profit. Go Green!
